COMMISSIONERS NAME SEALER

George Reffensperger Gets Position to which Forty County Men Aspired. What a Bushel Must Weigh.

Out of a field of forty candidates the commissioners of Adams County on Tuesday selected George Reffensperger, of Straban township, sealer of weights and measures. For several weeks the commissioners have been busy at their meetings and Mr. Reffensperger was elected on the fourteenth ballot. His salary was fixed at the minimum prescribed by law, $1000 and expenses.

Under the law the first act of the new sealer will be to visit the various districts of the county and see that the scales and measures in use conform to the standards. When dealers are to double as to the accuracy of scales and measures they should notify the sealer.

The following is a list of the various commodities with the weight required by law for each bushel. The fraction of a bushel will of course weight its proportion of the full bushel weight.

Servants Proved Faithful.

In the days of Terror during the French revolution, when one man was denounced by another as an act of revenge, it was rare indeed for the authorities to receive any information from servants, though it would have been the natural thing in the world for a servant smarting from a sense of injustice to have sent his master to the guillotine.

THROWN FROM MOVING TRAIN

Brake Wheel Suddenly Revolves Throwing Brakeman from Top of Large Coal Car. Has Remarkable Escape.

Falling from a rapidly moving freight train which arrived at Gettysburg about two o'clock Wed. morning Brakeman Roach escaped serious injuries and death in a most remarkable manner. The accident occurred at Rock Summit between the train was discovered by the crew until Gettysburg was reached.

As the train neared Maria Furnace Roach was on the mountain Brakeman Roach was on one of the big coal cars operating the brake wheel. He revolved suddenly, throwing him off and, fortunately, to the side of the track instead of between the rails.

For some little time he lay along side the embankment in the snow, bruises and bruises on many parts of his body. He finally recovered sufficiently to crawl over to the track and plan a warning cap on the rail. This signaled the approaching freight train and they picked him up, taking him to Fairfield where he was given attention. It was found that his injuries, though numerous and painful, were not serious. He returned to his home in Baggerstown by the first westbound passenger train this morning.

When his own train reached Gettysburg and he did not appear his suspicions a search was instituted. His lantern was found on top of the car where he had been operating the brake. The other members of the crew were not informed until after the morning when they learned that he had escaped death and would recover from his injuries.

LARGE SUITS

Blue Mountain House is Sued by Reason of Recent Fire.

Two suits aggregating $125,000 were filed Tuesday in the United States court against the Blue Mountain House Company and H. C. Bond and John Bond Appleman, their attorneys, against the Blue Mountain House Company and H. C. Bond and John Bond Appleman, their attorneys, registrars of the hotel.

The first is for $75,000 and Mitzger $50,000 damages.

The suit grows out of the fire which destroyed the hotel on August 5, in which the claimants narrowly escaped with their lives. Each claims that he was permanently injured because of burns he suffered.

The men occupied rooms on the fourth floor of the establishment, and claim that when the fire broke out, about 4 o'clock in the morning, they followed the direction of a sign marked "Fire escape" and a red light, which showed them into a rear room.

Expecting to find the way clear to the roof of the house, the men ran to the rear room, and instead of finding a fire-escape, they claim that there was only a window and a small window, high above their heads and too far away to be used as a means of escape and the rest of the room was littered with old paper and rubbish.

After searching the place they rushed back to their own room, but found the smoke from the hall below and smoke that were rising in dense volumes, and in desperation they went again to the little room as a last hope.

While there Metzger noticed a slight draft of air coming from the door and an investigation disclosed a crack in the heavy, thick planking, made up a few boards from the flooring and made an opening large enough for both to drop through to the floor below, whence they made their way to safety.

SWORMLEY—FORSYTH

John Swormley, Formerly of Gettysburg, Married in Harrisburg.

Miss Florence Edna Forsyth and John Montgomery Swormley were married Tuesday evening, at Harrisburg. They will be at home after February 1st, 1 North 4th street, Harrisburg. Mr. Swormley was a former resident of Gettysburg.

Right Sort of Schoolmarm.

"Too much grammar is misplaced," says the Atchison Globe. "An Atchison woman recently surprised county school commissioner by asking him if a teacher had to be smart as forty little pupils in her room to discipline and worry over. Why, I wouldn't part with a strain like that, was her indignant answer, and her eyes were actually tearful."

Most Fatal Explosion.

The most disastrous explosion ever known was at Groveless in 1854. Three thousand people were killed.

Ye Meke a Hat Fit.

"Police my advice, and your dandy will stand my Woolworth or Flatiron grant," said a Broadway humorous man to his companion, as the latter brushed his recreased lid with his coat sleeve. "When I buy a new hat I always have the head over a gas jet, put it on my head and let it cool there. Result—perfect fit. Try it."—New York Tribune.

Granby a Busy Man.

After a fire that destroyed Bessom's museum, the proprietor consulted his friends as to his whereabouts. He told them he had a fortune, and could establish a museum in a week's recess. Among his friends was Hezekiah Granby, who replied: "Wait until Saturday. "If I were you," replied Granby, "I would go fishing. I've been trying for 30 years to go fishing, and have never been able to do it."

"Me and Another Gentleman."

A little boy, spending the summer in the country, dictated this letter to his father: "Dear pa, you ought to be here. We have had fine times. We got out on the lake yesterday. Me an another gentleman cared the boat."

In answer to a request by Rev. J. H. Hartman the Reformed and Lutheran congregations of Bern, Berks county, Manheim township, York County, and Bethel church, at Smith's Station, made a donation, consisting of 300 pounds of laundry soap to the Hoffman Orphanage, near Littlestown. This donation was in addition to a recent check for five hundred dollars, the same congregation for the institution.

GRANTS LICENSES

All Licenses are Granted in Fuller County.

Judge Swope in McConnellsburg Tuesday evening granted the liquor licenses in the hotels in Fulton County—two in McConnellsburg, one in Burnt Cabins and one in Fort Littleton. In the case of the two McConnellsburg houses the No-License Leaguers had filed remonstrances, and submitted evidence. The hearings extended over two days of the Court's time.

TAKE PRECAUTION

Movie Men Must use Crowd their Picture Houses.

Arrangements for the arrest and prosecution of managers of moving picture shows who permit overcrowding of their theatres have been made by John Price Jackson, commissioner of labor and industry. Under the operation, with chiefs of police and burgesses in cities and boroughs of the state, because of reports sent to the capitol showing that the state laws and the common rules of safety are being ignored in many instances.

Miss Janet Robertson has returned to her home on Baltimore street, after a visit of several weeks with friends in Harrisburg.

MIKULEC HOME

Globe Trotter who Visited Gettysburg Finishes Long Journey.

Among the steerage passengers arriving at Philadelphia from Antwerp on noon on the steamship Rotterdam from Liverpool, was Joseph F. Mikulec, an Austrian, who traveled on foot around the world. "Joe" visited Gettysburg in the course of his trip and warmly received here. He is writing a book of his adventures and has collected signatures of prominent men whom he has met.

Mikulec was a painter in Philadelphia several years ago. Deciding to go around the world he left New York on January 16, 1911, and without money reached San Francisco. Reaching that city he shipped on a German auxiliary bark, the S. C. Richter bound for Australia. Then he visited Asia, Africa and Europe. He earned a living by selling postcards, and lecturing. Mikulec speaks six languages.

On laying Philadelphia Mikulec will walk to New York and thence to Washington.

SAVED FAMILY

County Man Sees Burning Home from Train.

W. R. Bowers, a son of George Bowers, of Tyrone township, and a native of H. H. Hershey, of York Springs, saved a family from being burned to death near Shippensburg on Sunday morning.

Mr. Bowers is a freight brakeman on the Philadelphia and Reading and Sunday morning when his train was passing Chambersburg Junction he discovered flames coming from the lower floor of the Jones Rutrey home. Stopping the train, he hastened to the house just in time to rescue Mr. and Mrs. Rutrey and seven or eight children from cremation.

It was with some effort that Brakeman Bowers awakened them. Seven small children were dropped from the second-story window into the arms of the Pennsylvania State Dairy union, the Interstate Breeders' association and Plant Breeders' association. All sessions will be held in court room No. 1, and will commence at 9:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Horticulturists from all parts of the state will attend and there will be addresses from men of state and national reputation.

A fruit show will be held in the Colonies, in connection with the conventions. There will be an exhibit of fruit as well as plants by the plant breeders' association.

The first session of the horticultural society will be held on Tuesday afternoon and will be opened by an address by the president, Hon. William Tyndale, of Centerville, Crawford county. This will be followed by the annual address of Prof. John Craig, of Ithaca. The response will be delivered by Robert J. Watson, of Hummelstown. Other addresses during the week will deliver addresses during the week.

JUST IN TIME

Naral Mall Carrier Arrives in Time to Save Mail.

But for the timely arrival of Rural Carrier Frank M. Moore Wednesday of last week the train house of D. Roy Frey in Liberty township, tenanted by Harvey Walter, might have been destroyed by fire. On his approaching the place Mr. Moore noticed large volumes of smoke pouring from the chimney, and upon investigation it was found that the stove pipe and chimney were afire, the pipe about ready to collapse. By throwing salt in the stove the fire was smothered. While the carrier was examining the upper part of the house to see that all danger was over, his horse took leave and started up the road at a fast pace. Fortunately John Pecher stopped the runaway after he had gone a good half mile, no damage being done to team or mail.

CAN'T BE TOUCHED

Red Tape Holds Up Game Commission Money.

Because funds coming in from the hunters' license cannot be touched by the State Game Commission until it is specifically appropriated by the legislature, many of the propositions the commission considered at its annual meeting will be postponed as they involved the expenditure of money. So far over $100,000 has been turned in at the State Treasury from this source.

Dr. C. B. Penrose, of Philadelphia, was re-elected chairman of the commission and Joseph Kalbfus, Harrisburg, secretary. Dr. Kalbfus' annual report makes no recommendations for legislation.

Evidence by Telephone

By EDWIN WATERMAN

There is nothing more irritating to a man than to be cursed by a woman, especially when some part of the execration is territorially true. Being on duty as Clara Underwood, a very pious and lovely young lady, I felt it my duty before retiring to give a few up certain amusements—a friendly game of poker, for instance—lest its conceal such from my fiancee. It seemed to me that my duty would be done in letting her know about them, for she asserted, I presume, with some show of truth, that I was thoroughly domestic men.

What was my horror one day when my locum friend, George Brewster, came to see and said:

"Great Scott, Billy! What do you suppose that letter, Hedge Hills, has been telling Clara about you?"

"What?"

"Why, that you drink, gamble and have already had four affairs that she knows of and as many more that she don't know of."

"You don't mean it!"

"Certainly."

"I wish she were a man; I'd make her eat her words."

"She isn't a man and you've got a lot of diplomacy to patch this up."

"What can I do?"

Dossier thereof awaits, then said:

"I have it—the telephone!"

"Wireless?" he groans."

"At Clara's house there is a receiver and a transmitter, and I'll call her up to see Clara and send up word that there's going to be some bridge whist developments. I don't know whether Clara will see you, but I can shoe dust by then to explain by a denial; it won't do any good; secure your case by telephone."

Brewster went to the transmitters and call up Madge at the other; then called Madge up back on the wire and said about you wilds Clara is listening."

"How can I do that?"

"Why, you're here you so favored—the power? Say a plan, if you can. Tell her that you've got a lot of stuff on your wife and be guided by what happens."

That afternoon I called on Clara, and I had the best time of my life in the interview. When I succeeded I told her that I was going to be away four hours of miles who would disprove the charges mentioned and that I would like her to hear what was said without the knowledge of anyone else was listening. She consented, and I started the ball.

Now, I know what neither Billy nor Clara knew—that Madge was one of the girls I had jilted. That is to say, she had jilted me before I had had a chance decided to be raked. Clara went to the receiver and listened to the cuss words Madge showered on me, and I'll say she showered on me, and I'll say she showered them with a vim.

"Why, you miserable, contemptible, low-down, cowardly, sneaking, lying, deceitful, treacherous, unmanly, unprincipled, unscrupulous, unmitigated, unadulterated, unconscionable, unmentionable, unspeakable, unutterable, unthinkable, unbelievable, unreliable, unsatisfactory, unsatisfied, unsatisfactory, unsatisfied, unsatisfactory, unsatisfied

CHURCH STRUCK BY LANDSLIDE

Rev. Ira W. Trostle's Church is Badly Damaged when Land Slides against Wall. Pipe Organ Ruined. Had Narrow Escape.

Rev. Ira W. Trostle, formerly of Arendtsville, a graduate of both the College and Seminary had his church at Pittsburgh, near Pittsburgh badly damaged by a landslide.

The thaw caused the ground to slide on a hill in back of the church, of which the Rev. Mr. Trostle is pastor, carrying away a large retaining wall and crushing into the church. A hole 20 feet square was torn into the brick wall of the building. The pipe organ was crushed to pieces, causing a loss of over $2,000. All of worship in the church narrowly escaped from being crushed.

Pittsburgh papers comment on the Rev. Mr. Trostle dancing on old nail of clothes and rubber boots and with pick and shovel helping to clear away the dirt so that services could be held on Sunday as usual.

WIND FANS TWO DWELLING FIRES

James Walker Property on York Street on Fire from Chimney Sparks. Blaze on Twining Farm Two Miles North of Town is Burned.

Gettysburg's firemen put through a hard and successful fight against a stubborn blaze in the attic of the Jesse Walker residence on York street late Monday afternoon. The fire was discovered by Charles Colestock shortly after it had gotten under way and the prompt turning in of an alarm had the automobile and the small army that gathered at the scene.

It is supposed that the blaze originated from a spark from a nearby chimney. William F. Culp and Arthur Hutchison, from the Central Auto Garage, were first on hand with hands of extinguishers and soon they held the fire in check until the firemen arrived.

A plug stream was soon working, but the pressure was not sufficient to throw the water to the top of the roof and the engine stream lasted only a few minutes until the big auction hose burst and the remainder of the fight was with buckets and chemicals. Thousands of nearby houses were dotted with men throwing on water to prevent a spread of the flames by the high wind which prevailed.

Not for many years have the firemen suffered from the cold as they did in Monday afternoon's work. The water formed on their hands, coats and helmets in sheets of ice almost as soon as it struck them and the work was done in the face of the greatest difficulties. Shortly after it was gotten under control a severe intermission was received from William F. Culbert to the men to come to his home where steaming hot coffee, sandwiches and other things had been and quickly prepared for them. It was a bit of thoughtfulness that was greatly appreciated.

At the Walker home the roof over the rear part of the house was badly damaged but little other harm was done except by the water which flooded the rear part of the residence. All of the loss is covered by insurance.

The fire fighting was a keen reminder of the Eagle Hotel fire which occurred exactly twenty years ago, January 13, 1894. It started at 8:15 in the morning and was on a cold, windy day very much like this January twelfth.

Burned to the Ground

The tenant house on the Joseph B. Twining farm on the Carlisle Road, a few miles south of Gettysburg, burned to the ground between eight and nine o'clock Monday morning together with a large part of the contents. The house was occupied by William V. Masemore and his wife. Mr. Twining's employe.

When first discovered the blaze was working about the chimney at the roof and had gotten little headway. The family quickly organized themselves into a bucket brigade and for a time it looked as if they were going to be successful in preventing a further spread of the flames, but the wind was too strong and gradually the fire spread until it was far beyond control. They then devoted their efforts to saving their clothing and furniture.

The building was a eight room frame house with attic and, once the flames had gotten headway, burned so quickly that they were forced to leave the contents. Mr. Twining carried some insurance but not sufficient to cover his loss.

The blaze was plainly seen from Gettysburg, as for many miles over the northeastern part of the county.

COLLEGE ARCHITECT

Mr. Snow, of Philadelphia, to Design New Buildings.

George G. Snow, of Philadelphia, has been selected by the building committee of the College Board of Trustees as the architect for the new college buildings, soon to be erected. Mr. Snow was selected from the applicants for the position, all of whom are architects of fine reputation. He graduated from college in 1890 and designed the gateway erected by that class in spring.

Keeping in Touch with Carlisle Indian School Graduates.

M. Friedman, superintendent of the Government Indian School at Carlisle, has just signed nearly three thousand letters of greetings, advice and good cheer to former students of the school. The superintendent has made it a practice to keep in close touch with the alumni and former students of the school and each year writes as many letters as his official duties will permit.

MISSION FOR THE ANTIQUARY

Discovery Made in Cairo in Scotland May Mean Something of a Puzzle So Far.

An interesting discovery has been made in the wild and mountainous pass of Drumochter, Scotland, about three miles to the west of Dalwhinnie, where Glasgow motorcars are carrying on operations for the improvement of roads. The stones in a cairn were found by the Duke of Atholl's head, between Perth and Inverness, while being shifted for a quarry material purposes, and while engaged in removing them to the side of the road came upon a well-preserved human skeleton. The bones were found close to the outer edge of the cairn, which is about fifty feet in circumference and of considerable height. Further operations revealed a second skeleton in the center of the cairn. There was no material to form a coffin, and no indication of cremation. The skeletons, in view of the discovery, have been left undisturbed for preservation the interment of the antiquarian society of Perth, who are unexpectedly recent times. No only surviving memorial of about a band of loose stones. The clot was formed of the Highland clansmen and was the seat of upright stones, suggestive of Pictish origin. The cairn itself is on the center of the cairn is set sadly out. Additional stones have been placed there to commemorate the battle fought between the Highlanders in 1746. The Pass of Drumochter is notable in the Jacobite annals by reason of the fact that Sir John Cope had a camp there in the neighborhood in August, 1745. Lord George Murray subsequently made a narrow escape from as pass held by the royalist army in a thick mist, and it is a curious fact that the cairn may have been erected to commemorate some such event.

The Dog's Mistake.

George Wise, a farmer, of a Baltor neily in Colborn, likened Governor Sulzer to a dog in this way: "A dog is a dog. "A schoolboy," said Professor Sulzer, "is a schoolboy, but a dog is a dog, a cat, and to this essay I'd call Sulzer the Dean, and Governor Sulzer a dog." His theme read the essay, which ran: "A dog is a dog. A cat is a cat. A dog gets the cat in the corner of a fence. A cat gets up a tree. The dog can't make her body twice as big as it is. The cat can't make her body as hairs up straw, and she spits and scratches and runs up a tree. So we see what he's doing of. Two while the cat's mother his cries a bit she runs on him in the nose, which you know, of all places, is the most. Both, in men has got the Bitter skin over it. You can't make the cat have no skin, a bit of meat. The dog feels just as if he was dead. The cat is glad to get off as he runs right away scratching to his self. The dog is glad to get on one a little one; when he see it in the yard."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Those Thrilling Phrases.

"Shoot at the white of their eyes!" said who has not?—from the tickling of the trigger finger of the recruit at target to wearing, stuck at ridiculous angles in the hats of veterans, the last mark of sympathy with the irate individual who has suddenly found himself engaged in an omnibus by endeavoring to pinch a few of the "white" feathers from the doves. Probably his assault was not premeditated. He was just a peaceful wheeze into one's face every half minutes, if anyone had the bad taste to question of the maniac as does a fly settle on a cow's rump. "Conscription may be as ugly as you please; but it will be the means of saving the life of many Women. In their personal adornment, for instance, they will be compelled to consider consideration for the comfort of their fellow creatures. Neighbors' Man brows crowned under the influence of the hat-pin will not find in terror from the murderous attack they adopt a rabbit against the mosquitoes."—London Daily Illustrated.

Tools for the Day.

Modern education has moved a distinct step forward in the matter of the choice of children as well as their brains. Manual training is now a necessary training.

Hands are the indications, as well as the result, of civilization. As a people we have become more and more manipulative and their experiences with them increase.

The awareness we pay to the skilled use of the hand is one of the highest value we place upon an article that is "hand-made." That fact seems to contribute a distinction to the manufacture of such things.

Every child should be taught to use his tools and to keep them in good condition. It will develop a spirit of self-reliance, a pride in good workmanship and a correct appreciation of the so-called "menial" labor.

Seven Surprises for the Doctor.

There is a story current about a lively house in Chester, Mass., about three o'clock one morning, a man aroused to consciousness by a lusty patient and hurried to the scene of suffering. Turning on the light to rush-of, expecting to find the case a serious one, he was met at the door by a baby ushered into a dining room, where a gay supper party was assembled. The first remark made to him was: "Oh! doctor, I am so glad you have come. We wanted you to settle a bet as to exactly where the diaphragm is." He not only told them where the diaphragm was, but a good many other things. The patient tried to modify him by asking his fee. Still furiously angry, he named a bigger one than usual, to his surprise, was paid in full.

LATEST STORY OF EDDIE PLANK

Have him Slated as a Possible Part Owner of the Lancaster Tri-State Base Ball Team. That City Having its Troubles.

Eddie Plank as a base ball magnate is the latest mid-winter talk among the baseball enthusiasts. The story is by a part interest in the Lancaster Tri-State Club is prophesied in a dispatch from that city to the Philadelphia Inquirer which says:

"With the prospect that Lancaster will be re-admitted into the Tri-State League, various rumors are afloat as to the men who will back the new organization in this city. Inasmuch as the affairs of the association in this city are now in the hands of the receivers, the club will be transferred from this city and is again to be taken to Reading, there has been no local baseball in this city since the reorganization of a new club. It is rumored that Eddie Plank, who has been made to Connie Mack to enlist his interest and support.

"Mack and his veteran pitcher, Eddie Plank, will address a public meeting in this city shortly with a view to stimulate public interest, and it is said that Plank may make a move to invest in the Lancaster proposition."

A DEPUTY SHERIFF

By M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

The stranger adult that feat caught sight of the Widow Henderson at the door of the cottage and beckoned to her rigid or was drawn with amusement.

The Widow Henderson was keenly alive to business. She was homely as a barn door and as rugged as an ox, but she had a voice like a bass drum and the heart of a child.

You may have noticed that big men are usually timid. The widow proved the rule. Her downward husband was six feet four inches in his stockings and just six stone hundred. When she stood on the doorstep with a frilled apron she was a head taller than the stranger, who was a dwarf in comparison. Peter Bill was small and he was timid. Besides, he was a widower. Besides, he was a bachelor. Besides, he was a widower and a bachelor and had been married. Besides, he was a widower and a bachelor and had been married and was looking for another wife.

The widow Henderson looked and looked at Peter Bill and knew that he was the light-weight deputy on the Lynch Fork circuit.

"Bishy, you sure need a protector. Be you the deputy sheriff?"

"You bet."

"I'm glad then they were sent day, and on the next the bride walked seven miles to the county seat and got a marriage license. Then she walked seven miles back and became Mrs. Peter Bill.

The following year was by no means dull witted, but he was made the victim of a practical joke. The climax came when the sheriff of the county nominated for the county Judge was a surely hard loser, and there was a scene at the convention when he came in at least once a week and the widow Henderson was a constant customer. Whenever he tried to get away from her she was crushed to the point of his bridge and he was made attempts to jump out of the windows, and one time succeeded in breaking one window. Miss Bailey, who is about 20 years of age, was considered by all under the conditions, that it should be the month of November and the year 1900 per cent for bear and deer might will be fined $1000 and costs. Without danger to birds. If bear and deer hunters are limited to the possession of rifles when hunting, the game fish rabbit season might will be extended to the end of February or the 1st of the month of March.

Regarding the hunters' license bill, he says the Commission had nothing whatever to do with it. It was introduced in the Legislature and the people having in mind the protection of game birds and animals, but the Commission had nothing to do with it.

Authorities at the local post office admit that the discovery of the new whereabouts was made in the manner indicated but refuse to divulge the name of the man.

TO PUT WOMAN IN AN ASYLUM

Emmitsburg Woman who Threw baby out of Window is Found to be Manially Deranged and will be Placed in Insane Asylum.

Miss May Bailey of near Emmitsburg, who threw her two weeks old niece from the third story window of her father's home, is declared by a jury to be insane asylum. The child's clothing caught on a nail and had her suspended until she was rescued.

The baby, who has been visiting her sister in Baltimore for several weeks, was taken to her home near Emmitsburg by her brother-in-law, setting upon advice of a Baltimore physician, and it is stated that since then she has been suffering with acute mania. Dr. B. J. Jamison and Dr. J. S. Brawner, of Emmitsburg, who attended her, found her in a raving condition, four men holding her at the time they entered the room.

It is said that the cause of Miss Bailey's derangement was the fate that befell a friend, a street car accident in Baltimore in which two men were killed, and since that time she has been in an unsound state of mind. Since last night's storm she has been raving, she has made attempts to jump out of the windows, and one time succeeded in breaking one window. WONDERS HOW GAME IS LEFT

State Game Commissioner Says Slaughter is so Great that he Does not Understand how Any Game is Left in this State.

Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, secretary of the State Game Commission, declares in his annual report which he has just placed in the hands of the Governor, that the game seasons are so absurd as to make it impossible to enforce the laws of the game is to survive. He says in one portion:

"When I consider that our game birds are not nigretory, that they must stay in the state where they are reared to face not only man who pursues, but terrific, disease, starvation consequent upon climatic conditions, the only wonder to me is that we have game at all and it seems to be impossible if that game is to be continued and that the succeeding crops which may hunt must be restricted, that very few days in the season should be had to the time that she witnessed the accident. Since that time has not been in possession of her mental faculties.

On Thursday Drs. B. J. Jamison and J. S. Brawner, of Emmitsburg, adjudged Miss Bailey to be insane and on Friday the sheriff's party have her committed to the Springfield Hospital for the Insane at Sykesville.

Up to Saturday there was no action has been taken by the Baltimore police in the matter, but Miss Bailey's sad condition is learned, it is thought that no effort will be made to prosecute her.

A Royal Change of Mind

By ARTHUR W. BREWSTER

The blue of Aurania had sailed the day of Warrenberg for the land of the intire's oldest daughter, Aurelia, for the former's son, Prince Carl. The prince had been most unfortunately engaged so far as dictionary was concerned, to the princess Ilse, the daughter of Aurania to make the acquaintance of his future. Being worse by disway of say kind, he traveled in courtly state and arrived at the palace without being heralded.

Passing along a corridor on his way to his room he heard a voice issuing from her rooming night have text the princess Ilse, and as the door being some he has been suffering with acute mania. Dr. B. J. Jamison and Dr. J. S. Brawner, of Emmitsburg, who attended her, found her in a raving condition, four men holding her at the time they entered the room.

LAUDS STATE'S APPLES

Pennsylvania Apples are as Good as the Best.

"Pennsylvania apples are as good as the best apples grown in the United States," said State Economic Zoologist H. A. Surface, who has been personally good crop of apples raised in the Keystone State.

"While in Ohio recently," continued Prof. Surface, "I met a gentleman who had purchased a number of fine apples raised in Pennsylvania, and he was loud in his praise of the quality of the same way of thinking. That the Pennsylvania apple is the best to be found."

GROFT—GEETING

Married at Same Hour as Bride's Parents 55 Years ago.

Miss Annie Geeting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Geeting, and Mr. Ira Nathan Groft, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Groft, all of Silver Run, were quietly married at the latter's parsonage, Silver Run, January 8, at 10:30 a. m. by Rev. Mr. Lentz, at the bride's parents' marriage, just 55 years ago. The marriage was performed by Rev. Luther Hoffman, pastor of both bride and bridegroom. The bride was dressed in a blue cloth traveling suit. Immediately after the ceremony they left for a two weeks' trip to Fairfield, Abbottstown, Baltimore and other points.

Miss Mary Kendlehart, of West Middle street, was called to Littlestown to attend the funeral of a friend.

CARING FOR THE WINTER BORN CALF

Winter dairying is held in favor by some men who are on to their jobs, because the cows give the extra care and attention, writes a correspondent in the Farmers Advance. Such dairymen give their calves well fitted and warm quarters, where they are fed and kept as clean and have as much care as the cows of the milch herd. Plenty of warm bedding is furnished, and if there is any suspicion of foul odor the floor is taken up and the earth under the floor before fresh bedding is applied.

To give the calf the best possible start in life the cow should be carefully attended to the stall on the sunny side, and should be milked from the udder, which, where the young calf can take the first nourishment, is the best. Before the colostrum, or first milk, is thrown away, the calf should be pulled; also a number of times it is best to let the calf suck the first few days of its life, as this is the natural way for it to get the colostrum, which is the best physic for the young calf. Then it should be separated from the cow and fed regularly from a bucket, and it may be necessary to warm it slightly after it has been separated. Regularity in feeding is important. The feed should be kept clean and sweet; the milk pail should be kept scrupulously clean. There is little danger of diarrhea, which is the most common trouble with young calves, if the feeding is done with proper attention, writes the correspondent. The young calf is easily chilled, and should be kept in a warm, dry place, free from drafts. Calves do not like cold water, and it should be warmed to the chill off. WOULD RECLAIM WAYWARD YOUTH

Parent Teachers' Association to Take a Hand in Caring for Boys who Get Beyond Control of Parents and School Authorities.

Another step forward in the betterment of conditions for children in Gettysburg was taken on Friday evening by the Parent Teachers' Association when the officers of the organization were instructed to appoint an incorrigible children and to endeavor to secure their committal to some institution other than the usual State reformatories.

The specific case which brought the matter before the association was that of Lee Derry, the youth charged with the larceny of clothing from a member of his own family. The boy is declared to be unusually difficult to handle and the view was expressed at the association meeting that there might be some mental trouble which would require special study in the treatment and better surroundings.

The placing of the boy in a reformatory, one member declared, would simply fit him for a penitentiary sentence later on. Another view was that to interest the Court to the proposition and, in the future, to be the aim of the officers of the Parent Teachers' Association shall make appeals to have boys who get out of hand be gotten beyond parental and school control.

The principal address of the evening was made by Dr. J. A. Stigmaster on the subject of "The Fundamentals in the principles of peace in the public schools." He pointed out that the great cost of war both in lives and in money and cost of the wonderful armaments of the nations of the same money were used for other purposes, the world would become a heaven on earth. In addition to their fixed principles, the schools should be kept free from the influence of politics.

If a case of diarrhea, caused from cholera infantum, is taken in time it can be cured. In addition to their fixed principles, the schools should be kept free from the influence of politics. A dose or oil in a pint of warm milk each hour until relief is had, will be all the medicine you require. Avoid ice cream and all kinds of food that have a chocking influence on the nerves.

Some make a feed of great make of Gettysburg, on the 17th of this month. Think this advisable, as it seems fully as much interest in the matter as the Court house. The little danger of diarrhea, which is the most common trouble with young calves, if the feeding is done with proper attention, writes the correspondent. The entertainment part of the program consisted of music by the High school orchestra and a recitation by a double male quartet. Mrs. H. T. Weaver, Rev. E. Dow Ott and Miss Mary Benner were appointed as the program committee for the next meeting.

The visiting committee for next month is composed of Mrs. H. C. Myers, Mrs. Horace Crouse, Mrs. Reuben Flisel, Mrs. Samuel Spangler, Mrs. Harry Bream and R. B. Sefton and Mrs. Milton Bennet.
